

Convocation Honors Harrison, Pangborn

On Thursday, September 19, 1963, Loyola College concluded the annual pre-school retreat with the Mass of the Holy Ghost and Fall Honors Convocation. The Very Reverend Vincent F. Beatty, S.J. celebrated a Solemn High Mass, asking the blessings of the Holy Spirit upon the student body during the coming academic year.

Doctor of Letters

The Fall Honors Convocation opened with the bestowal of an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Letters, Honoris Causa, upon Professor George Bagshawe Harrison, Ph.D., well known Shakespearean authority and author.

Professor Harrison

Born in Hove, Sussex, England, Professor Harrison received his bachelor of arts degree from Cambridge University in 1923. Five years later he obtained his doctor of philosophy from the U. of London.

Teacher

He entered the teaching profession in 1924 and taught at the University of London until 1939, when--as a veteran of the First World War--he began teaching at Queen's College, Kingston, Canada, where he became head of the English Department. He held this post until 1949, when he went to the University of Michigan, where he is presently a Professor of English Literature.

Author

Professor Harrison is also the author of many distinctive books dealing with the Elizabethan and Jacobean eras. He has also edited and co-edited various other works dealing with William Shakespeare.

Distinguished Guest

Among the distinguished guests was Mr. Thomas W. Pangborn. Mr. Pangborn was honored by Pope Pius XII as Knight of Malta and Knight of Holy Sepulchre. Recently, Pope John XXIII made him Chamberlain of Cape and Sword, a great honor, for his work in the Catholic Church of Maryland.

Gold Medals

Gold medals were awarded to William Hofherr, Paul Montgomery and Robert Diegeman for the highest average in junior philosophy, junior theology, and in all freshman courses, respectively. Joseph Bartek was presented two gold medals for the highest average in sophomore philosophy and in all sophomore courses. Robert Serio received a gold medal for the highest grade in a competitive Latin examination.

Silver Medals

Robert Diegeman also received a silver medal for the highest average in freshman theology. Medals were awarded for excellence in German, French, and Spanish to John Schap, Robert Filipiak, and

Rector's Message

September, 1963

Dear Men of Loyola:

In the name of the faculty and administration, I extend a 1963 welcome to Loyola College students. It is heartening to see so many of the upper-classmen return to continue their education, and I am particularly pleased to see 243 freshmen begin a curriculum leading to a bachelor's degree at Loyola College.

The purpose of the liberal education offered by Loyola College is to free the specifically human faculties from the obstacles which prevent their proper and efficient functioning. We hope that your minds will be freed from error and made ready to accept truth and that your will and emotions will be freed from the tendency to evil and will be disposed to love the good. We hope that there will be both freedom and discipline in your lives. The annual retreat and the ceremonies of the Honors Convocation are meant to emphasize the purposes and goals of a Loyola College education, and I hope each will influence your lives for good.

May you enjoy your associations and time at Loyola College and be assured of our interest in your work.

Sincerely yours,

Vincent F. Beatty, S.J.

Welcome

The student body of Loyola College warmly welcomes the new faculty. We are sure both teachers and students will benefit. We also hope that we will enjoy our new teachers as much as they will appreciate us.

Letter From Loyola

Dear Editor:

What a hectic summer! Glad to be back at Evergreen for a "rest!" I thought I'd drop you a brief note about some "new" changes at Loyola.

Has Loyola changed her colors from Green and Grey to Blue and White, or was the student handbook printed at Mt. St. Mary's? It would be nice if the student handbook were printed in our school's colors-- part of school spirit and all that!

I see that the Wolf and Kettle Society (formerly the Academy of Student Orientation) has now become the Academy of Student Orientation (formerly the Wolf and Kettle Society). This activity should become non-existent and its activities (few that they are) passed on to other, more appropriate, campus organizations.

Convocation

John Dent, respectively. The Three Arts Prize was awarded to freshman Stuart Rochester and sophomore Bernard Vondersmith, for proficiency in English.

Address and Closing

Professor Harrison's address was well received by the student body and was thought by all to be very appropriate for the beginning of a school year. Father Beatty, S.J. closed the ceremony by welcoming the students to Loyola, especially the freshmen, by wishing them a good year.

Bob Serio receives award.

The Spectrum

As I Was Saying . . .

Another school year opens, and with it returning, among other things, this column, though rechristened. It is just hoped in this quarter that it has as much potential on the Bulletized Zephyrs.

Issues

Just as in last year's "Keyhole," this column will explore what it considers to be topical issues of interest in any and all fields--touching upon as many bases as possible. Reader comment is welcome. Having dispensed with these pompous formalities, this mercifully short first column will end with an appropriate observation by Mark Twain from his Pudd'n Head Wilson: "Let us be thoughtful for the fools. But for them the rest of us cannot succeed."

IL BARBIERE

Loyola College has a barber this season. Angelo Groves is our new coiffure. He attended the Baltimore Barber School and is now attending cosmetology courses at Mergenthaler.

Mr. Groves is formerly of Bruno's in the Towson Plaza. He has been cutting hair for five years and comes to Loyola with much experience.

Why Loyola

Three reasons prompted Mr. Groves to come to Loyola: he wishes to see how he can make out on his own, he enjoys working and talking with younger people, but he hopes not to encounter too many philosophical and/or theological debates, and he desires to see if he can satisfy the hair styling problems of Jesuit students.

Perfection

Mr. Groves' shop, located in the bottom of the Student Union Building will be open from 8 to 4 p.m. daily. Mr. Groves is going to place a system of mirrors in his shop and wishes that his customers instruct him according to their fancies in order to insure perfect hair cuts.

We learned that Mr. Griffin, the barber at Loyola College last year, has retired, due to the pressure of other activities.

ALPHA SIGMA NU'S

On the 5th, 6th, and 7th of this month Alpha Sigma Nu, the National Jesuit Honor Society, held its bi-annual convention at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Those attending the convention included the National Officers, the delegates from each chapter, and some chapter moderators, a few alumni, and several non-voting spectators.

National Organization

There are 27 Jesuit Colleges throughout the United States. Of these, 25 have Alpha Sigma Nu chapters, and many have alumni chapters. Fordham University in New York and Regis College in Colorado are the only Jesuit institutions that have not applied for an Alpha Sigma Nu Chapter. The convention is held every two years, if financially possible, in order to determine the policy of the organization. The supreme legislative body of Alpha Sigma Nu is the delegates assembled in convention.

Convention Agenda

After an informal evening on Thursday, the convention officially began on Friday, Sept. 5th. The work on Friday and Saturday included discussing national policy, preparing and explaining various committee reports, amending the National Constitution, and finally, nominating and electing National Officers.

Touchy Point

The keynote address was delivered by Father Paul Fitzgerald S.J. of the Jesuit Educational Association. He vividly presented to the convention the immense problems facing private education in the years to come. Out of this arose a significant question which dominated the convention. Can and should Alpha Sigma Nu as a national organization promote private and Jesuit education?

Honor vs Science

A considerable amount of time was spent both Friday and Saturday debating this issue. Even the National Board was sorely split on this point. One group wanted Alpha Sigma Nu to hold a strictly honor status.

The fraternity would be entirely parochial. ASN would mean something on Jesuit campuses and that would be the extent of it. On the other hand there was the service viewpoint. Alpha Sigma Nu would go over and above its national organization and be a so-called lobby. To achieve this objective, the National Board would use not only its own resources and those of the student chapters, but also the talents of the 5,000 alumni of Alpha Sigma Nu.

Outcome

After much discussion, those who supported the honor viewpoint won out. This was a crushing defeat for three of the four members of the National Board. Any hopes they had for re-election quickly flew out the door. A completely new board of National Officers was elected with the hope of establishing a more solid and worthwhile Alpha Sigma Nu.

Council Clips

The Student Council of Loyola College met twice during the summer in order to establish the internal machinery of the group. On May 14th Chuck Lancelotta was sworn in as President of the Student Community, and the first meeting was held. This meeting was given over to orientation of the new members.

More business was transacted at the second meeting on June 3rd. It was at this meeting that Dr. Mair was chosen lay advisor to the Council. The popular political science professor was elected by acclamation. Bill Scholtes, president of the Junior Class, was appointed temporary secretary during the June meeting.

Two key committees were formed for this year. Ken Dawson, the Senior Science Representative, was selected as Chairman of Elections Committee. Serving with Ken Dawson is John O'Shea and Jeff Friedman. A second committee was established to choose a "College Bowl" team to participate in the newly formed "College Bowl" contest sponsored by the Inter-Collegiate Council. Members of this committee are Frank Walsh, the Chairman, Denny Keating, Phil Pierpont, and Dick Higdon.

In another move the Council passed a motion by Bill Scholtes to request the administration to ask all teachers to announce the dates of all major tests for the coming semester at the beginning of the school year.

The next meeting of the Council will be held today. On the agenda for this meeting is the important item of selection of permanent officers.

Music Notes

The coming season of the Baltimore Symphony, which begins on October 1, 1963, promises a varied and extensive repertory, and plans to present well-known and lesser known artists.

Stellar Attractions

The Russian violinist David Oistrakh is scheduled to play later in the season with the orchestra. Much anticipation surrounds this event as the Symphony has been attempting for several seasons to present him in concert with the orchestra. Also, the noted American soprano, Leontyne Price, who was scheduled to sing with the Symphony last season, but cancelled due to sudden illness, is scheduled to sing with the Symphony in March, 1964. The anticipation surrounding her performance involves her scheduled singing of the last act of the Strauss opera Salome. Herbert Von Karajan, the Austrian conductor has asked Miss Price to learn this role for performance in the summer of 1964 in Europe. She declined because of present commitments, but, for the first time, has consented to sing the last act for us here in Baltimore.

Local Attractions

The Peabody has in the past held competitions for rising young conductors and these winning were presented with the Baltimore Symphony. The same will be done this season. Also, members of the Symphony will be featured as soloists in newly written material and in more familiar chamber readings. The 15-year old violinist who scored such a success last year has been asked to return. Master Bushwell has played mostly with the local Symphony and it seems that he is one of its own products and possessions.

Other Artists

Yehudi Menuhin is scheduled to open this year's season. He was scheduled to open the season last year, but was unable to come to this country because of illness. Other artists are Gina Bachauer and Leon Fleisher, to mention a few, who are expected to perform. Special student rates are available. For information about season tickets or any particular performance, please contact Walter Miles or an officer of the Music Club.

The Watchdog

Gentlemen of Loyola,

In its long and distinguished career, the "Watchdog" has served Loyola College well, both as an information center, reporting on the various cultural activities on the campus and as a highly commended moral guide, crying for the reform of the raving masses of illiterate and undisciplined students. With this goal in mind, we wish to welcome the freshman class. It might be well to offer a few suggestions to the Class of '67 in order that its members learn early in their college careers just what is expected of the true Loyola gentleman. I am referring specifically to the abuses which have permeated the cafeteria.

For the past few years, a few students have played a little adolescent prank with the sugar and pepper shakers. This prank consisted of emptying the sugar shaker and filling it with salt! Despite countless warnings on the part of the "Watchdog," this intolerant practice continued until the cafeteria personnel were forced to remove the sugar shakers from the tables. (After all, who wants salt on his french fries?) We warn the freshmen to desist from this malicious practice and request that, should they find salt in their shakers, to empty it out in the trash cans and fill it with sugar.

In addition to the aforementioned transgression, we ask that freshmen never leave their lunch tables uncluttered. Jobs are difficult to find nowadays. If a student returns his tray and glasses, he deprives a member of the cafeteria staff of that work and thus adds another statistic to the growing number of unemployed. Please leave the trays on the tables; you will be helping to boost our nation's economy.

We feel certain that we can expect the full cooperation of the Class of '67, and as they march proudly onto the athletic field today, garbed in their new R.O.T.C. uniforms, we wish them the best of luck in the rugby tilt.

Frosh, Returning Veterans Brighten Soccer Picture

Good Freshman Turnout Encouraging

Add to this a banner turnout by the freshmen, the biggest and most enthusiastic in years, and a spirit which has swept the veteran ranks, enveloping the new comers, and the ingredients are present which could add up to Loyola's first soccer champion in well over a decade.

Practically this same squad just missed a year ago, bowing to Lynchburg, 2 to 1, in the ruggedly fought payoff game.

Defense Problem

Experience, ability, spirit, and a large turnout by the freshmen—it seems that Coach Reitz could not ask for more. Between draws on his pipe, however, the "Left-hander" voices some concern over his defense which he feels will not be as strong as last year. Depth is also a question mark, but the as yet unevaluated freshmen could be the answers to both problems.

Prospects look bright for the fall. It is very heartwarming to see so many freshmen out for the team. From these the team can be kept strong in the future.

Senior Sports Spotlight

For our first Senior Sports Spotlight of the Year, the Greyhound salutes Denny Grabowski, one of Loyola's all time soccer greats. Since he joined the varsity team at Mt. St. Joseph, Denny has been outscoring every member of his league and team. Leading the M.S.A. for two years, he was voted All Maryland twice and was offered scholarships to four local colleges, including the U.S. Naval Academy.

Scoring Leader

At Loyola he is beginning his fourth year as the starting forward center. All M-D for three years, All South last year, leading conference scorer for two years, he holds scoring records at Loyola with 19 goals in a single season and 48 in three years. His ability to shoot with either foot and go to either side has enabled him to lead the seven teams on which he has played during the last five years.

Although he will not continue to play organized ball after college, Denny hopes to coach soccer in his spare time. Despite all his other awards and records, Denny feels his greatest moments occurred during the American U. game, in which he scored 5 goals. Denny's plans after college are as yet uncertain. We hope his success in life will match his fine athletic record.

Dennis Grabowski

Intramurals

Every year at this time please issue forth to rally the student body in support of the various activities, athletic and social, on the campus. Of course, not every student is capable of performing in a varsity sports program. However, every student, capable or not, is more than welcome to participate in intramural sports.

Fun and Finesse

This program has always had great value, not only as a morale builder, but also as a means of letting off some of the steam produced by academic pressure. Intramural sports are for the benefit of all, and can be beneficial only when a large number take part. If you want to see a comedy of errors interspersed with high caliber athletics, the Greyhound highly recommends either an active or spectator interest in the intramural program.

Applications Accepted

Applications and rules for intramural football and the tennis tournament are on the Athletic board in the gym. Entries for both competitions close today, Sept. 27. Play in the tennis tournament begins on Monday.

The present senior class, boasting such fine teams as the Polar Bears, Mavericks, Crusaders, and Sharks have dominated these leagues for three years.

Cross-Country Captain, Mike Kenney.

Attention Frosh

Loyola has had so many fine cross-country teams in the past that this has become a school tradition. A climax was reached when the Greyhound harriers were undefeated through thirty dual meets from 1958-1961, and twice won the Loyola Invitational.

Last year the Loyola team had a 2-5 record in dual meets and did poorly in both the Loyola Invitational and the conference championships. Of that team only two men remain, both seniors.

Runners Needed

The Greyhound asks the underclassmen, particularly the freshmen, to consider this sport. Many of our past stars had never run cross-country until college; the main requirements are time, work, and desire. This is a fine opportunity for anyone who wants to participate in collegiate sports. See Coach McElroy in the bookstore.

Head Trainer Wilson Beane Begins 24th Year With Athletic Department

Between coffee breaks and somewhat unusual lunch periods, Wilson Beane has found some odd moments over the past twenty-three years and some odd months to create for himself the position of a Loyola institution. Ostensibly a trainer, Beane has filled in at a variety of posts since he began to run with the Hounds in April of 1940. Before being hired by the athletic department, Wilson led a most active life. He engaged in amateur wrestling for a time in Delaware. "No Graeco-Roman," says Beane, "rough and tumble!" He also spent some time as a barkeep in Baltimore.

Soon after Wilson came to Loyola, the normal scholastic routine was interrupted by World War II. When Lefty left for Naval duty, Beane was faced with a much heavier schedule which he handled ably until Coach Reitz's return.

Six Assistants

In his quarter century of service Beane has worked his way through six assistants, including the inimitable B. Harmon. Besides his duties as keeper of the tape and chancellor of the shower, Wilson helps out in the faculty house pantry after hours. He is also a familiar figure in the checkroom at Loyola social affairs during the year. Wils' ain't but one man, but he's been an indispensable figure to thousands of Loyola athletes.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Charlie Cherry

The Greyhound Sports staff would like to wish all of our teams a very successful season. We have an extensive athletic program here at Loyola with ten different teams representing the school in inter-collegiate competition, and we are justly proud of their accomplishments.

Impressive Record

The record compiled by these teams last year is indeed impressive. All but two of the teams had winning records, and the numerous laurels garnered include six division titles and two conference championships, the latter in swimming and tennis. This record is doubly meaningful when one considers that we are a comparatively small school, competing against many schools with double our enrollment.

Spirit Needed

An important factor in such success, one often stressed and rightly so, is the element of spirit. Often a difficult concept to define, spirit is not really such an intangible thing: one sees it in a large attendance at the various games, one hears it in loud cheering, one feels it by an encouraging slap on the back.

The effort of any athlete is increased immeasurably when there is ample support given him. The task of stimulating such spirit falls in large part to us, the student body. It is we who, though proud of our past achievements, should contribute our hearty support during the upcoming season.
